FIRM DESCRIPTION

Eckhardt Trading Company was founded in 1991 by William Eckhardt in Chicago. Eckhardt is a research driven investment manager with a systematic, technical and evolutionary approach to global markets. The manager employs a variety of short term and pattern recognition strategies with an average trade length of under 10 days. Since its founding, the firm has prioritised ongoing research and development, with a dedicated research team that has been working together for more than a decade. William Eckhardt has been a pioneer in the systematic space since the 1980's, culminating in a research partnership with the University of Chicago.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE & STRATEGY DESCRIPTION

The investment objective of the Fund is to achieve long-term capital growth. Please refer to the latest prospectus and the relevant key investor information document(s) of the Fund ("KIID") for more information. Documents can be found at www.investcorp-tages.com.

The strategy uses market volatility as a key metric to identify and capture alpha by trading several diversifying models across multiple time horizons and volatility regimes. Eckhardt's unique analysis and understanding of volatility characteristics and positioning/sentiment results in strategies across four system groups: 1) Short-term volatility trend captures price changes across short-term time frames in periods of changing volatility; 2) Pattern recognition uses proprietary models to seek contrarian profit opportunities during periods of consolidating or reversing markets; 3) Risk-off alpha systems aim to capture alpha in periods of higher volatility, particularly in equity markets, and 4) Sentiment Alpha which use positioning/sentiment metrics to identify both contrarian and early trend opportunities. The program also uses different sets of signals to trade subsets of commodities and market sectors where Eckhardt has identified additional alpha to be captured. The Eckhardt program is based on 40 years of pioneering research from Bill Eckhardt and his team, applying evolutionary computing and risk-based utility theory with in-depth volatility analysis. The current portfolio has an average holding period of less than 10 days.

COMMENTARY

Evolution Strategies made good gains across all the major asset classes, and with all the system groups bar one contributing meaningful profits, a testimony to strong portfolio diversification. Commodity prices maintained their surge while fixed income and equities fell under the continued pressure of Russia's invasion of Ukraine and in response to US monetary policy aimed at managing inflation.

Short-term Volatility Trend and Sentiment Alpha again led the way on the short side of fixed income and the long side of commodities as the US Federal Reserve reinforced its commitment to raise rates through 2023 and crude oil rose to nearly $130. Medium-Term Volatility Trend contributed in the same market groups. Currencies entered a more favourable regime after several months of difficult trading. The major themes of inflation management and rising commodity prices drove profits on the long side of the US dollar, Mexican peso, and Australian dollar and on the short side of other majors such as GBP and JPY.

There was high volatility in both metals and grains, including a near market failure in nickel and war-driven concerns about the global wheat supply. ETC's systems navigated these choppy markets earning profits in nickel and other industrial metals, as well as wheat and corn. Longs and shorts contributed about equally to profits in March, while the short side remains the clear winner year-to-date.

RISK GLOSSARY

Credit and Counterparty Risk: A counterparty may fail in paying the proceeds of sale for assets sold by the Sub-Fund or may fail in delivering securities purchased by the Sub-Fund. The Sub-Fund may also incur the risk that a counterparty may fail to settle a transaction in accordance with its terms and conditions because the contract is not legally enforceable or because it does not accurately reflect the intention of the parties or because of a dispute over the terms of the contract (whether or not bona fide) or because of a credit or liquidity problem, thus causing the Sub-Fund to suffer a loss.

Derivatives and Leverage Risk: The Sub-Fund may use derivatives as a means of gaining indirect exposure to a specific asset or as part of a strategy designed to reduce exposure to other risks, such as interest rate or currency risk. Whilst this is intended to help the Sub-Fund to manage risk or to take investment positions more efficiently or effectively than could be done otherwise, derivatives can involve the use of debt to finance the purchase of assets (leverage) and the risk of higher volatility, especially if some of the expected offsetting positions between long and short investments do not work as expected, and the Sub-Fund may be exposed to additional risks and costs as a result.

Short Selling Risk: The Sub-Fund may create synthetic short positions through the use of derivatives. Short positions behave differently to long positions; for example, the Sub-Fund can come under pressure to close out short positions at short notice and before an offsetting long position can mature. This can create unexpected losses from positions that might otherwise have been seen as low risk or well hedged.

For a more detailed explanation of risks, please refer to the "Special Considerations and Risk Factors" section of the prospectus.
